Higher Costs—And Prices—Ahead for Newspapers, Magazines

Two factors developing this early in 1971 make higher prices inevitable for newspapers and magazines in the coming months.

As you read in our edition of yesterday, postal rates in all classifications will be increased the second week in May. First-class mail will go from 6 to 8¢ per ounce, air mail will be advanced from 10 to 11¢ an ounce. Second-class mail charges (newspapers and magazines) will be doubled, the increase being prorated over five years.

Some off-beat subscribers, remembering that the newspaper almost unanimously supported the switch from a Congress-run Post Office Department to the present independent Postal Service corporation, may argue that our position was an effort to justify higher prices for ourselves. But that's not true. The postal price rise had been in the works for a year or more, was recommended to the new publicly-owned but independent corporation by the outgoing Congress-run outfit—and was endorsed practically unanimously by the press regardless whether they recovered the increase from subscribers or had to absorb the extra cost themselves.

The issue was one of service inadequacy. Postal costs rose, service worsened, and the Post Office Department deficit hit a new record every year.

The new rates are expected to produce additional postal revenue of 1½ billion dollars—just about enough to offset the current deficit.

We and our subscribers should accept this additional cost on the grounds that users should pay their own way when dealing with a government agency—just as we do when dealing with private business.

Which brings us to another cost increase—a price rise in private industry.

In December 1970 American and Canadian paper mills increased the price of newsprint (the coarse white paper that newspapers use) $8 per ton, effective at various dates in 1971. Our mill, Southland Paper, Lufkin, Texas, has set the switch-over for April 1, after which newsprint will cost us $159 a ton instead of the present $151.

However, we have in transit a 32-ton car for delivery before the end of this month, at the old price. As we use three or four cars of paper a year, any subscription price changes will be delayed at least three months from date of shipment of the first car taking the $159 ton-rate. You may expect some announcement on our subscription rates by May or June. Subscription rates are tied to newsprint and postage costs, leaving all other production cost rises to be covered by advertisers, from which 65 per cent of a newspaper's revenue is derived.

Tornado Alert Includes Hempstead

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The National Weather Service has issued a tornado watch for 47 counties in Arkansas. The watch is in effect until 5 p.m. today.

A few severe thunderstorms with large hail and locally damaging winds are forecast.

The greatest threat of tornadoes is in an area along and 70 miles either side of a line from 70 miles south-southwest of Texarkana to 70 miles north of Little Rock.

Counties in the watch are Boone, Carroll, Madison, Newton, Cleburne, Searcy, Stone, Van Buren, Independence, White, Franklin, Johnson, Logan, Polk, Pope, Scott, Sebastian, Yell, Conway, Faulkner, Garland, Grant, Hot Spring, Perry, Pulaski, Saline, Lonoke, Prairie, Woodruff, Hempstead, Howard, Lafayette, Little River, Miller, Montgomery, Pike, Sevier, Bradley, Calhoun, Clark, Cleveland, Columbia, Dallas, Nevada, Ouachita, Union and Jefferson.

Bumpers Asks $25 Million Tax Increase

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers was to ask the legislature today for a "modest" tax program of between $20 million and $25 million, informed sources said.

Sources indicated Bumpers would offer some type of income tax proposal, an expansion of the 3 per cent sales tax to some items now exempt from the tax, and elimination of use tax exemptions granted quasipublic corporations.

Several references also were made to a bill already introduced in the legislature by Sen. Joe T. Ford of Little Rock that would expand the sales tax to cigarettes and to sales of used, tangible personal property, such as second-hand automobiles.

Ford has delayed seeking action on his bill because aides of the governor had asked for time to study the provisions of Ford's bill for a possible incorporation into Bumpers' tax program. Sources close to the governor said the administration probably would introduce its own bills to accomplish some of the things covered by Ford's proposal.

Bumpers was to reveal the details of his revenue program in an address before a joint session of the legislature this afternoon. He has not divulged what he might propose.

The governor met with members of the House and Senate Revenue and Taxation committees this morning to brief them on his tax plans. The breakfast meeting at the governor's mansion lasted for more than an hour.

Bumpers said afterward only that the meeting was "pretty good."

Elimination of use tax exemptions was proposed in the 1969 legislature, but was defeated. Winthrop Rockefeller, governor then, initiated a study later that estimated the amount of additional money the state would get by repealing the exemptions would be between $2 million and $4 million.

Ford has been advised by E. E. McLeese, assistant commissioner of state revenue, that extending the sales tax to cigarettes would produce about $3 million a year. No figure has been given on what would be provided by adding the sales tax to second-hand property.

None of the sources mentioned the possibility of Bumpers proposing an increase in the sales tax.

A Ladies' Male Hair Stylist Hears Same Remarks Over, Over

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a ladies' male hair-dresser gets tired of hearing: "I'll have to charge this one, Maurice, I've already run over my household budget for this month."

"How did you get into this business anyway? Just lucky?" "I'll bet you must get tired now and then of listening to women's eternal jabber, jabber, jabber—don't you?"

"Why don't you ever carry on a conversation with me in French, Maurice? I took two whole years of it in high school, and I can still parlez-vous my way around it pretty good, eh mon petit—whatever the word is for cauliflower?"

"Isn't that vexing? I left my purse at home again. If it isn't too much trouble, Maurice, would you mind—"

"My hair's a mess, my husband is a mess, my children are three messes, and my whole life is just one great big mess. But you don't think I'm a mess myself, do you, Maurice?"

"I'm so hung over this morning I don't think I can sit still while you do my hair unless you can pour me a little nip of get-well scotch. You don't, really? Well, let me read the label on that bottle of hair tonic, and see what's in it. Any port in a storm."

50,000 Allied Troops Involved in Cambodia Drive, Possibly Laos

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command, ending a six-day news blackout on the northwest sector of South Vietnam, disclosed today that 20,000 Saigon troops are engaged in a major operation in that area. They were poised for a possible thrust into Laos.

One of the biggest pushes of the war was developing. American forces totaling 9,000 were sweeping the jungles in the northern quarter of South Vietnam.

Consumer Protection Bill Clears

By ROBERT SHAW
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers' consumer protection bill cleared the Arkansas House Wednesday despite the opposition of a bloc of legislators who charged Gov. Dale Bumpers with trying to "railroad" the measure through.

"The administration has tried consistently to run these bills over us and I think they are trying to do it this time," said Rep. Bill R. Holloway of Lake Village before the 67-28 vote that sent the bill to the Senate, where a companion measure already has passed.

While the administration suffered a verbal upbraiding in the House, the Senate dealt the first legislative defeat to a Bumpers-backed bill, whipping a measure that would set up a system for collecting and storing data on crimes.

In the House, the representatives passed and sent to the Senate a bill that would exempt retirement pay and disability benefits of former servicemen from the state income tax.

A number of representatives tried to stall a vote on the consumer protection bill, but they were turned back. The House defeated on a vote of 38-56 a motion by Rep. Boyce Alford of Pine Bluff that would send the measure to the House Judiciary Committee for further study.

The House also limited debate on the proposal, cutting off attempts by several legislators to amend the bill, raising the Adding a second front to the operation, 20,000 South Vietnamese troops had moved across the border into Cambodia.

That raised to nearly 50,000 the over-all total of ground troops involved.

Lt. Col. Tran Van An, chief spokesman for the South Vietnamese military command denied reports sweeping world capitals that South Vietnamese forces had already crossed into Laos. But he would make no forecasts.

Asked if South Vietnamese troops planned to cross the border, An replied: "We do not discuss future operations."

U.S. officials here said no American ground troops were in either Cambodia or Laos. But U.S. warplanes were flying support to Saigon troops in Cambodia. And American bombers kept pounding North Vietnamese supply lines.

Egypt Denies Ceasefire Extension

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Egyptian government today denied that Cairo Radio had announced Egypt's acceptance of a one-month extension in the Middle East cease-fire. But indications mounted that such acceptance would be forthcoming, possibly in a speech later today by President Anwar Sadat.

The six-month-old cease-fire is scheduled to expire at midnight Friday.

Reliable sources in the Egyptian capital reported Wednesday that Sadat's government had agreed to give U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring 30 days more to come up with a formula to advance the peace talks he is holding with representatives of Israel, Egypt and Jordan.

Thursday night a Cairo broadcast heard in Washington said Egypt had agreed provisionally to extend the truce until March 5. "There was no such broadcast," Egyptian government spokesman Munir Hafez said today.

But the Cairo correspondent of the usually well informed Lebanese newspaper Al Nahar also reported the Egyptian government has agreed to the extension. He said the Egyptians consider it "the last chance for peace."

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad sent a message to Secretary of State William P. Rogers, but its content was not disclosed.

Cairo press reports said Riad also sent urgent instructions to Egypt's U.N. delegate, Mohamed H. El-Zayyat, to urge the Big Four powers to take a "positive stand" on implementation of the U.N. Security Council's Nov. 1967 resolution setting forth general principles for a Middle East settlement.

That resolution called for Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territory and recognition by Arab states of Israel's sovereignty within secure boundaries.

Pedestrian Hit by Car, Badly Hurt

Early last night at Highway 67 and Spruce Streets Frank B. Thomas, 74, of 118 East Avenue C was seriously injured when struck down by an auto driven by Robert L. Bennett, also of Hope.

Thomas appeared to have both legs broken and other injuries. He was taken to Memorial Hospital for treatment and sent to a Little Rock Veterans Hospital by a Hempstead Ambulance Service car.

City Policeman Richard Rowe said Thomas stepped into the path of the Bennett vehicle. No charges were filed.

Power Crisis in Northern Part of U.S.

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The acute shortage of electricity plaguing parts of the Northern United States could be but a bleak portent of things to come, a Federal Power Commission official says.

Since mid-January, 19 voltage cutbacks have been ordered in areas from Chicago to New England. "I've never seen cutbacks like we're seeing now," Commissioner John A. Carver Jr. said in an interview. "Whatever else it might mean at the present time, it means we're going to have to live with this for the foreseeable future unless the good Lord sees fit to change the weather, and I don't think that will happen."

In the last three weeks, according to FPC data, voltage cutbacks of up to 5 per cent have been necessary eight times in the power pool serving New England, seven times in the New York State power pool, three times in the PJM pool serving Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia and once in Chicago and other areas of northern Illinois served by the Commonwealth Edison Co.

The utility firms serve upwards of 50 million people, but few felt any pinch beyond the inconvenience of voluntary compliance with pleas to use as little power as possible. There is no readily noticeable effect until power cutbacks reach 8 per cent as they did during last summer's power crisis along the Eastern Seaboard.

But, according to Carver, the danger of more serious voltage reductions will continue throughout the rest of the winter, in the hot months next summer and could even become a traditional, semi-annual crisis over the next several years.

"Frankly," he said, "I don't see any respite in our near future." The problem is that demand for electric power doubles every 10 years with per capita demand growing five times faster than the population—much faster than the utilities' capacity to produce it.

Until electric utilities turn the technological corner, Carver said, power shortages are nearly inevitable.

"Electricity, unlike coal or oil, can't be stored," Carver said.

Countywide Mental Health Meet Feb. 9

Reverend William Huddleston, Director of Field Services for the Arkansas Association for Mental Health, will speak at a public meeting to be held in Hope on Tuesday, February 9. Time for the meeting has been set for 7:00 p.m. The meeting will last for one hour and will be held at the community room of the Hope Chamber of Commerce.

The purpose of the meeting, according to Mr. Huddleston, is to acquaint local citizens with the status of mental health work throughout Arkansas. Mr. Huddleston has stated that, "mental illness is the nations number one health problem. More of our citizens are crippled by this disease than by all other health problems combined. However, we in Arkansas have much to be thankful in this area. We have an outstanding program at both the state-wide and community levels in dealing with this serious problem."

Mr. Huddleston will show slides of the various programs around the state and will discuss the specific programs which are available to the citizens of Hempstead County. He will also discuss what needs to be done on the local level in order that these programs may become more effective.

The meeting is open to the public and anyone interested in the Mental Health movement is urged to be present.

Apollo 14 Circles Moon in Preparation for a Dawn Landing Friday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 14's astronauts fired into a "roller coaster" orbit around the moon today, swooping to within 11 miles as they prepared to land Friday in the bleak and rocky lunar highlands.

"We're here!" shouted commander Alan B. Shepard Jr. as Apollo 14 skimmed over the craggy landscape at the low point of the orbit. "I think we can make it down from here tomorrow."

As Shepard, Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa circled the lifeless moon, they were struck by its desolate beauty, describing it as "wild," "fantastic," "stark" and "incredible."

Shepard and Mitchell could hardly wait to become the fifth and sixth humans to set foot on the surface to further explore this new but ancient world.

The stage was set for another great lunar adventure when the astronauts triggered the com-

Laird Defends Blackout on Troop Moves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today the movement of U.S. and other forces in the South Vietnamese region near the Laotian border "was accomplished without a single casualty attributed to enemy combat."

Laird credited a nearly week-long news blackout for this, noting that the movements occurred in an area where American troops had suffered casualties in the past.

In a talk to a high school student group, Laird gave no details on the big troop movement which finally was announced early today, but he took occasion to defend the controversial embargo imposed on reporters while the movement was in progress.

He did not indicate whether the operation would carry over into Laos.

Laird said the embargo was "imposed by Gen. (Creighton) Abrams to protect American lives" and that it was removed when "it achieved its objective."

World to See Moonwalks on Television

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two televised moonwalks will be beamed live and in color across a quarter-million miles of space Friday and Saturday.

The three major networks—NBC, CBS, ABC—will relay the telecast into homes throughout the nation. The drama will be viewed around the world via communications satellite.

The shows feature Apollo 14 astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Edgar D. Mitchell, a spider-like lunar landing machine named Antares and the Frau Mauro highlands of the moon.

The TV specials, the first beginning at 8:45 a.m. EST Friday, will take viewers on a journey across the rugged surface as the astronauts set out in search of scientific secrets.

For identification purposes, Shepard's spacesuit will be adorned with red bands. And Mitchell promises a running commentary.

"We plan to be very talkative," Mitchell said in a pre-flight interview. "We will try to describe the lunar geographical scene as we progress from one point to another."

The flight plan calls for Shepard and Mitchell, the fifth and sixth Americans to walk the moon, to begin the first lunar excursion at 8:53 a.m. EST Friday.

Viewers back home will watch Shepard and Mitchell set up a nuclear-powered science station, deploy several experiments and detonate 21 firecracker-size explosions on the lunar surface.

Mitchell also will arm a mortar to launch grenades on a signal from earth months after the astronauts leave the moon.

Moving about the dusty surface in their bulky protective suits, the astronauts will follow the tradition of Apollo 11 and 12 explorers and plant the American flag.

On their second outing, starting at 5:38 a.m. Saturday, Shepard and Mitchell guide their earthly audience on a geological trip through the craggy, cratered moon valley.

They roam a total of 8,400 feet, but never more than half a mile from the lunar module.

The spacemen will visit a number of craters, making their way up a 400-foot high slope to the rim of one impact area which scientists believe may yield special treasures.

"We hope that here we will find rocks that date back to the birth of the moon, perhaps 4.5 billion years," Shepard said. "We hope they will tell scientists much about the origin of the moon, and perhaps our earth and universe."

The astronauts will lug along with them a moon buggy of sorts, kind of a cross between a golf cart and a rickshaw, which will carry tools, cameras, rock bags and scientific instruments.

To guard against a camera mishap such as befell the Apollo 12 crew, Shepard and Mitchell have a color camera with a special lens cover to prevent damage from the sun's powerful glare.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Fire Department officials said the bodies of two women were found in the upstairs of a rooming house here following an early morning fire today.

Airline Loss $48 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — Pan American World Airways, Inc., has reported a preliminary loss of $48.03 million, equal to $1.37 a share, in 1970, based on unaudited figures.

The loss, announced Wednesday, compares with a net loss of $25.89 million, or 75 cents a share, in 1969, the airline said.

The primary reason for the decline was an unanticipated traffic slump last fall, a company spokesman said.

Commission Asked to Deny Rate Hike

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Former state Insurance Commissioner John Norman Harkey Wednesday asked the state Insurance Department to deny an Insurance Rating Board request for a 20.6 per cent increase in automobile liability insurance rates and a 23.9 per cent increase in collision and comprehensive coverage.

Harkey, who is representing the Arkansas State AFL-CIO as an intervenor in the IRB application, said the rate increase request was not in compliance with state law.

Harkey said there was "no way the insurance commissioner could intelligently determine in conformity with statutory requirements whether present rates should be increased, decreased or remain the same."

New Hearing to Deal With Strikes

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, which ignored President Nixon's request last year for permanent legislation to deal with emergency transportation strikes, is ready now to give the idea a hearing.

Although public hearings on the proposal is an advance, there is no guarantee any measure can be worked out.

In past sessions, the committees responsible for labor bills have shied away from legislation providing for expanded presidential powers designed to forestall major walkouts.

President Nixon submitted a bill last February to deal with threatened transportation strikes which could lead to national emergencies, but no hearings were called in either the House or Senate.

He resubmitted the proposal Thursday and said the narrowly averted, crippling railroad shutdown two months ago had emphasized anew the urgent need for some permanent solution.

Sen. Harrison A. Williams, Jr., D-N.J., the new chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, said even though hearings would be held on the legislation, he could not commit himself to Nixon's bill or any other.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., senior Republican on the panel, welcomed Williams' pledge and said he believed Congress would pass the first such law in a quarter century this year.

The New Yorker said he would introduce his own bill today, but said it would differ from the President's in three important respects.

The principal block to such legislation in the past has been union opposition to provisions calling for compulsory arbitration as a last resort. The AFL-CIO reaffirmed its dislike Thursday.

Many businessmen object, too, since power to set wages and working conditions could rest with a third party.

The Nixon bill contains a "final offer selection" plan which the union officials consider tantamount to a compulsory arbitration clause.

Congress has passed a number of bills to head off railroad or airline strikes in recent years, but each dealt only with the union involved.

Bennett was arrested in Little Rock Aug. 25, 1969. His case has been postponed numerous times because of Bennett's health and a subsequent operation for throat cancer on Sept. 12, 1969.

Several witnesses testified that Bennett was ill and not intoxicated at the time of his arrest.

New Jersey Blast Claims 8th Victim

LAMBERTVILLE, N.J. (AP) — An eighth victim has been found by firemen probing the debris of gas explosions which destroyed four houses.

One of the dead, Nancy Crosby, 64, survived a blast which rocked her home and set it afire, but was killed when a second explosion Wednesday blew up a house across the street where Mrs. Crosby had been taken for shelter. Killed with her were Bessie Randolph, 62, owner of the house; Mrs. Randolph's granddaughter, Lisa Randolph, 12; Blanche Case, 36; her daughter, Vanessa, 12, and Evelyn Trent, 50.

Brian Hoagland, 11, who had stopped to watch the fire in the Crosby house, also died in the second explosion.

The last victim found in the neighborhood debris Wednesday night was tentatively identified as Florence Waldron, about 40.

A spokesman for the Elizabeth Gas Co. said a preliminary investigation indicated the blasts were caused by a cracked valve in a nearby high pressure main.

a convention center in Little Rock and proposes that a day law school be located in it.

"We're opposed to the bills for a variety of reasons," said Rep. Rudy Moore of Springdale. "The need has not been demonstrated for a second, day law school. The one we have now needs improved. The state can't afford two, day law schools."

Rep. Hugh Kincaid of Fayetteville said more than 400 law students studied in a facility on the Fayetteville campus that was designed for 250. If a second day law school is established, the state will "struggle to operate two third-class law schools."

He said the establishment of a second school would "substantially diminish quality legal education in Arkansas for many years to come."

In saying the bills probably were a prelude to an effort to move the Fayetteville campus school to Little Rock, Kincaid also said the legislation "resurrects many past movements to move other parts of the university to Little Rock."

He said he could not think of a "less likely" location for a quality law school than in a convention center.

One of the bills would make the library available for use by institutions of higher learning. The University of Arkansas has a night law school in Little Rock but no day school. The Bar Foundation of the Arkansas Bar Association has plans to build

Other recommendations for improvement of the legislators included fewer committees, greater public access to information and voting records, more staff at professional and clerical levels and better facilities for the legislators and their staffs.

In the categories studied, Arkansas ranked 41st in functional, 40th in accountability, 46th on informed, 34th in independence and 33rd in representation.

California was ranked No. 1 in the study.

Group Fears Little Rock Law School Grab

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Northwest Arkansas legislators believe that the University of Arkansas Law School located on the Fayetteville campus is threatened by legislation introduced in the Senate.

The legislators fear that by providing a method of establishing a day law school in Little Rock would weaken the Fayetteville campus school. They also view it as a prelude of moving the law school to Little Rock.

The last victim found in the neighborhood debris Wednesday night was tentatively identified as Florence Waldron, about 40.

A spokesman for the Elizabeth Gas Co. said a preliminary investigation indicated the blasts were caused by a cracked valve in a nearby high pressure main.

Other recommendations for improvement of the legislators included fewer committees, greater public access to information and voting records, more staff at professional and clerical levels and better facilities for the legislators and their staffs.

In the categories studied, Arkansas ranked 41st in functional, 40th in accountability, 46th on informed, 34th in independence and 33rd in representation.

California was ranked No. 1 in the study.

Group Fears Little Rock Law School Grab

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Northwest Arkansas legislators believe that the University of Arkansas Law School located on the Fayetteville campus is threatened by legislation introduced in the Senate.

The legislators fear that by providing a method of establishing a day law school in Little Rock would weaken the Fayetteville campus school. They also view it as a prelude of moving the law school to Little Rock.

Their objections are to three bills sponsored by Little Rock senators. One of the measures would levy an additional $1 cost in all courts to support revenue bonds for the construction of law school facilities at Fayetteville or Little Rock. Each of the other two bills also would levy $1 court costs with the money under one bill going for the purchase of books for county law libraries and the funds under the other measure going for the operation of the libraries.

One of the bills would make the library available for use by institutions of higher learning. The University of Arkansas has a night law school in Little Rock but no day school. The Bar Foundation of the Arkansas Bar Association has plans to build mand ship Kitty Hawk's engine on the backside of the moon at 2 a.m. EST to zip into an initial orbit 67 to 195 miles high.

Four hours later, they again fired the engine to shift into a path 11 to 68 miles above the surface, the closest approach yet by an Apollo command ship. The lunar module Antares still was hooked to its nose.

On Apollos 11 and 12, the lunar ships were released at altitudes above 65 miles. Antares will be cast off late tonight at the 11-mile altitude in a maneuver intended to improve landing accuracy and to give the astronauts extra fuel to use in the search for a smooth touchdown site.

Shepard and Mitchell said before the flight they expected to experience the sensation of a roller coaster ride as they hurtled downward in the low orbit, with the rugged features of the moon seemingly rushing up to meet them.

The astronauts were exuberant after attaining the initial orbit.

As they passed over the Fra Mauro landing site, Mitchell said: "It sure looks rough down there. As interesting as this is from orbit, it just whets your appetite to get down there."

"Fantastic! You're not going to believe this. It looks just like the map," said Roosa.

As Apollo 14 swooped to the 11-mile altitude on the front side of the moon, Mitchell reported the features were much sharper close up.

The rocket burst that shot them into the first orbit occurred behind the dark side of the moon, out of radio contact. It was not until 20 minutes later when Apollo 14 reappeared around the edge of the moon that orbit was confirmed.

Shepard's voice broke the silence with a subdued, "We had an extremely fine burn."

But then the commander, who has waited nearly 10 years for a crack at the moon since he became America's first space-man, could not contain himself, and burst out with, "This is really a wild place."

29 Americans Killed in War in Past Week

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. command reported today that 29 Americans were killed in action in Vietnam last week, a sharp drop from the 50 killed in the previous week and the lowest toll in four weeks.

Another 15 Americans died of accidents and other non-hostile causes, the command said.

Headquarters also reported 244 U.S. troops wounded in action last week, compared with 295 in the previous week.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 222 government soldiers killed and 543 wounded last week; the week before there were 274 killed and 816 wounded.

The allied commands reported 776 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed last week, a little over a third of the 2,036 claimed during the previous week.

South Vietnamese military headquarters in Saigon said it had no information that its forces had advanced into Laos to strike at North Vietnamese troops and supplies moving down the Ho Chi Minh trail. But a Communist Laotian spokesman in Vietnam claimed more than 5,000 Saigon troops had crossed the border, and heavy fighting was under way in southeastern Laos.

The United States threw the full weight of its air power and logistics support into the operations, including B52 heavy bombers, tactical fighter-bombers, helicopter gunships and medical evacuation helicopters.

The ministry statement said that in the past few days, U.S. and South Vietnamese troops have been massing along the border between Laos and South Vietnam.

The U.S. Command code-named the new operation in South Vietnam's northern quarter "Dewey Canyon II." The first Dewey Canyon operation through southern Laos. American officials said "airborne coordinators" were flying with South Vietnamese officers over Cambodia in American aircraft.

In Vientiane, Premier Souvanna Phouma said he had no word that South Vietnamese troops had moved into southern Laos along the Ho Chi Minh trail. He labeled "absolutely false" a Japanese report that 5,000 South Vietnamese paratroops had landed on the Bolovens Plateau in southeast Laos.

The official announcements rebutted Moscow statements over the last three days that an invasion of Laos involving U.S. and Saigon forces was under way. U.S. planes have been attacking in Laos for months, however, in efforts to throttle the Ho Chi Minh trail.

Communist China's Foreign Ministry accused the United States of launching "a new military adventure in Indochina."

The ministry said Peking considers it its "duty and obligation" to give all-out support to the people of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia until victory is won in "the war against U.S. aggression."

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

MUST SHE OR MUSTN'T SHE?

Dear Helen:

You asked your teen readers if a girl "has to" be an easy make if she wants to make it with the "in" crowd—this after a mother said her 16-year-old daughter was unpopular because she was a "good girl."

I'm a male sophomore and speak for a lot of us. I personally enjoy a girl more if she is free and relaxed, not free and easy—just being herself and not trying to make it. I take her out to enjoy her company. If she feels she "has to" just to buy another date, we'd both be short-changed.

If this girl and her mother think teen-age girls can't be popular unless they give in, they'd better take another look at themselves—and the world. — NOT A BAD GUY

Dear Helen:

To that mother who blames her daughter's unpopularity on not putting out. Baloney! As you said, Helen, if a girl makes a federal case out of "being good," she'll turn the guys off because nobody likes a girl who comes on with "I'm 99.44 percent pure."

Or... if she's constantly asked out by the "handy" men, maybe it's because she is a tease. Boys don't like that kind either. What you promise by your actions, they expect you to give.

Or... maybe she has a bad personality, so she doesn't get asked twice because she's a bore... Or scared of males, and he shows it. (Her mother's fault?) Believe me, it isn't for sex reasons unless she's chosen the wild crowd, and I wouldn't call them "in."

I know. I've been dating since ninth grade. I'm only fair looking, no great figure, but I've never been dumped by a boy after one date. Maybe I've decided not to date him again, if his ideas are different from mine, but there are always others who accept my standards and even like them. — NOT YET

Dear Helen: It makes me furious when I read, "My baby is a good girl, so she doesn't get asked out" from mothers. She doesn't have to if she doesn't want to—and she will still be popular if she isn't a dud. It's girls' choice. — ENGAGED AND WAITING

Dear Helen: That girl who thinks she "has to" should try dating older guys who aren't so demanding. I've found it's the kids my age (15-16) who have nothing but sex on their minds. Older fellas value a girl for what she is not what she does. — P.T.

Dear Helen: A girl who thinks she has to put out to get a date is so desperate she probably will—and then she'll discover she doesn't keep him anyway because he can find other girls who really enjoy it. — A GUY

Dear Helen: Let's be honest and say that "Yes, nowadays if a girl is over 18—maybe even younger—a kiss doesn't end the evening, it begins the night."

To many "liberated" girls have spoiled it for those of us who aren't yet ready. I can't get romantic about every guy I date, but he seems to think that if I don't make all signals "go" I'm a cold one and not worth bothering with.

Seems to me women have emancipated themselves into slavery. By being "equal," they're forced to act like sex machines. And the more they give, the less likely it is that marriage will survive as an institution.

Speak up, girls, and unite before it's too late. — READER FROM WEEHAWKEN, AGE 21.

Dear Helen: It's all relative. If a girl trades herself in piece by piece for popularity, she'll end up feeling used and empty and probably discarded. But if she truly loves the guy—and is mature enough to know what love is—nobody looks down on her, though if she feels guilty, she'll hate herself. And if she gets in trouble, they may one or both decide it wasn't love after all. — NOT CONDEMNING, NOT PARTAKING

Term's Derivation Chauvinism, a term for excessive and unreasonable patriotism, is derived from the name of Nicolas Chauvin, a French soldier who retained devotion to Napoleon long after the war.

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — Arthur Miller's play, "The Price," plus some superb acting gave television viewers a fine 90 minutes of drama on NBC Wednesday night.

The author was probing deep into ruptured family relationships, bringing together after their father's death two brothers who had been estranged for years.

George C. Scott, disciplined and believable, played the resentful brother who had assumed responsibility over the years for a dependent father, believing it had caused him to miss college and wind up as a policeman with a shaky marriage and bleak future. Barry Sullivan was the brother who followed his ambition and became a successful surgeon.

The confrontation came in a dingy furniture-filled room in a condemned Manhattan brownstone. The policeman and his fed-up wife were meeting a used furniture dealer in hopes of getting a few hundred dollars for the shabby furniture.

Gradually the weariness and defeat in the man was revealed, first in his attitude toward his wife, played sensitively by Colleen Dewhurst, and finally spilling out furiously with the appearance of his brother. As emotions boiled, it became evident that behind the facade of success and money, the doctor's life was even more of a mess than his brother's. It also developed that the policeman's sacrifice was essentially of his own making rather than necessary.

Miller's way of revealing characters bit by bit is particularly effective in television's intimacy. It was a real television treat, a taste of good theatre, in the "Hall of Fame" series.

NBC also launched the fourth and final segment of its "Four in One" series, "The Psychiatrist," with Roy Thinnes playing television's latest dedicated doctor.

The first of its six programs was a story about the doctor's experiment with a methadone maintenance program for a group of convicted heroin addicts. Most of the hour was spent delineating the fears and suffering of addicts seeking to stay off hard drugs with the help of medically prescribed methadone.

Lombardi and 6 Players in Fame Hall

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Coach Vince Lombardi and six players — Jim Brown, Y.A. Tittle, Norm Van Brocklin, Andy Robustelli, Frank "Bruiser" Kinard and Earl "Big Red" Bennett — were named today to the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

The seven inductees, whose selection swells the Hall of Fame ranks to 70, will be honored at enshrinement ceremonies in Canton on July 31.

Lombardi, who died of cancer last Sept. 3, gained lasting acclaim for leading the Green Bay Packers out of the National Football League depths and into a dominance during the last decade. His Green Bay clubs won five NFL titles and the first two Super Bowl games.

The onetime member of Fordham's Seven Blocks of Granite moved on to Washington as coach, general manager and part owner in 1969. He guided the Redskins to their first winning season in 14 years before he was stricken with cancer.

Brown, elected to the Hall in his first year of eligibility, led NFL ball-carriers in eight of his nine seasons with the Cleveland Browns, establishing an all-time career record of 12,312 rushing yards. He was named all-league fullback seven times.

Tittle, who played 17 pro seasons and ranks second only to Johnny Unitas on the all-time passing list, was the NFL's most valuable player in 1961 and tied for the honor in 1963 while quarterbacking the New York Giants.

Van Brocklin, masterful quarterback for Los Angeles and Philadelphia during his 12-year NFL career, paced the Eagles to the 1958 championship. He coached the Minnesota Vikings for six years and has been the Atlanta Falcons' skipper since 1968.

Robustelli, from little Arnold College, was a hard-rock defensive end for 14 NFL seasons with the Rams and Giants. The seven-time all-league selection shares the all-time career mark of 22 opponents' fumble recoveries.

Kinard earned all-NFL honors in his 1938 rookie year with the old Brooklyn Dodgers and, in six subsequent NFL seasons and two more in the All-America Conference, established himself as one of the most durable and talented of all pro tackles.

Hewitt joined the Chicago Bears in 1932, and was a stand-out all-around end for the next decade. He played without a helmet until 1939, when the league ordered him to don one. He died in 1947 from injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

The new Hall of Fame members, largest group named in three years, were picked by the shrine's Board of Selectors—one representative from each pro football city plus the president of the Pro Football Writers Association.

The selections were announced by Hall of Fame director Dick Gallagher.

Four Blacks Quit TCU Grid Team

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — New Texas Christian football Coach Jim Pittman, admitting "I've never faced anything quite like this," announced Wednesday that four black players, all starters, had quit because of the lack of "social activity" at the Southwest Conference school.

Pittman said he was told by Larry Dibbles, Raymond Rhodes, Hodges Mitchell and Ervin Garnett—all sophomores—that they are going to Florida State where "there are regular social activities such as fraternity activities and parties."

Dibbles is a defensive tackle from Dallas who was being considered for preseason All-American honors by one national magazine.

Rhodes, a running back from Mexico, Tex., was TCU's leading rusher in 1970.

Mitchell, a defensive back from Dallas, led the SWC in punt returns. Garnett, of Wichita Falls, Tex., started the first four games and was slowed with an injury.

Three other black football players remain at TCU.

Pittman said there were no complaints about "the present coaches or any of our rules."

When Pittman came to TCU from Tulane after Fred Taylor was fired at the end of the season, he instituted a dress code that discourages beards, moustaches, and sideburns below the bottom of the ear.

"If they had said they resented not being able to have a moustache, I would have accepted that more readily than the reason they gave," Pittman said. "A football team has to have unity unless you want to play grab bag."

All the players were clean shaven when they met with Pittman Wednesday except for Dibbles.

Pittman found out about the discontent when he arrived Tuesday night off a recruiting trip into West Texas.

Explorers Impressive in Victory

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer
If there is any criticism of the LaSalle Explorers and Ken Durrett, it would have to be their erratic play. With any consistency, the Explorers would have shut out Loyola of New Orleans and Durrett would have scored 500 points.

After all, the Explorers ran up an 18-0 lead Wednesday night and Durrett scored 10 of those points in 48 seconds, but they couldn't keep up the pace.

Still, no one was complaining as the Explorers settled for a 74-53 victory and Durrett finished with 29 points in an impressive performance for the 10th-ranked Explorers, the only team in the Associated Press Top Ten to see action.

Duquesne No. 14 was the only team in the Second Ten to play and the Ducks beat San Francisco 90-77 for their 10th in a row.

After LaSalle's victory, St. Joseph's trounced Bowling Green 86-71 in the second game of the doubleheader at Philadelphia.

In other top games, Louisville ran past Tulsa 98-85, the Bonnies routed Xavier, Ohio, 104-77 and Fordham overcame Army 65-60.

Elsewhere, Rich Yunkus scored 37 points as Georgia Tech beat Georgia 90-77, Syracuse nipped Penn State 68-64, Boston College trimmed Rhode Island 86-80, Florida State bombed Wisconsin 98-61, Tulane downed Louisiana State 93-86, North Carolina State tripped Maryland 71-61, Canisius slipped by Detroit 65-64 and Creighton overcame Southern Illinois 90-71.

West Virginia beat Pitt, its arch rival, 95-91 with the game being cinched by a head of lettuce.

Pitt was ahead 92-91 with 14 seconds left when a foul was called against the Panthers because an overzealous Pitt fan threw a head of lettuce on the court. Wil Robinson converted on a one-and-one situation to put the Mountaineers ahead.

Using a man-to-man defense, LaSalle held Loyola scoreless for the first eight minutes of the game while the 6-foot-6 Durrett, the fourth leading scorer in the country with a 30.2 average, notched two three-point plays, a field goal and two free throws in a 48 second span.

The combination was more than enough to give the Explorers a good start to their 15th victory in 16 games.

A 25-foot jumper by Ronnie Nunn with just one second left gave George Washington an 86-85 overtime triumph over Navy.

Louisville ran its record to 15-4 as guards Larry Carter and Jim Price scored 30 and 20 points, respectively. Dana Lewis had 37 for Tulsa.

St. Bonaventure shot a torrid 60 per cent from the field with Greg Gary hitting 28 points and Paul Hoffman 25 as the Bonnies outclassed the host Musketeers.

Fordham, however, had its troubles until Bill Mainor hit 17 of his 20 points in the final 12 minutes to lead the Rams to their 14th triumph in 15 games. Army led 36-23 at one time but the Rams caught up at 58.

existed," Pittman said. He said he didn't know how the loss of the four players would affect his fledgling recruiting program.

"We've been talking to quite a few players," he said. "That remains to be seen."

Pittman said "I think the quicker things like this happen the better. When we went to Tulane (from an assistant's job at Texas) we had 20 football players quit. I thought that was a big help in that it didn't waste our time in preparing them to play. I've always believed that everything happens for the best and I feel that's true in his case."

Pittman said he hopes the players' quitting is not blown out of proportion in the press. He said "This is not a case of racial prejudice or anything like that. I know some people will be looking for some reason to find fault with something like this. We haven't been around them enough for us to know how they felt."

Pittman said "They told me for two years they have been unhappy. They said after ball games the white athletes go out

Baseball Hall Opens to Black Players

NEW YORK (AP) — The doors of the Hall of Fame, baseball's prestige palace, finally have been opened to Satchel Paige, Josh Gibson and other great black players of the past who were excluded from the major leagues until 1947.

"I like the idea; I like it very much," the ageless Paige said Wednesday night when told of the formation of a special 10-man committee to select outstanding stars of the old Negro leagues for inclusion in the Cooperstown, N.Y., shrine.

Paige, longtime pitching ace of the Kansas City Monarchs who finally made it to the majors in his 40s, and Gibson, the late slugging catcher of the Homestead Grays and Pittsburgh Crawfords, are the top candidates for the initial Hall of Fame spot, to be announced next week.

"There were several boys in the Negro leagues back in those days who were Hall of Fame caliber," Paige said in Kansas City. "Besides Josh Gibson, there was Frank Duncan, my catcher on the Monarchs, and another catcher, William Perkins of Birmingham and outfielder Oscar Charleston, who were great, to mention just a few."

A long campaign for recognition of the Negro stars who played in obscurity before Jackie Robinson broke the major league color line in 1947 with the Brooklyn Dodgers came to a successful conclusion Wednesday with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's announcement of the special Hall of Fame category.

The selections, Kuhn said, would be made "as part of a new exhibit commemorating the contributions of the Negro leagues to baseball."

The commissioner said the special category did not constitute a compromise. "The rules for selection of the Hall of Fame are very strict and I think those standards are correct," he said. "Through no fault of their own, these stars of the Negro leagues didn't have major league exposure."

Paige was one of the few exceptions. He joined the Cleveland Indians in 1948, pitched in the World Series that year and was over 50 years old when he finally bowed out. He said that by the time he got to the majors, "I was not at my top. I was better when I was younger. But I was chosen twice on the All-Star squad for the American League."

Other candidates for enshrinement under the new provision include shortstop John Henry Lloyd of the Lincoln, N.Y., Giants, centerfielder Cool Papa Bell of the St. Louis Stars; first baseman Buck Leonard of the Grays; third baseman Ray Dandridge of the Newark Eagles; infielder Judy Johnson of the Crawfords, pitcher Cannonball Redding of the Monarchs.

The victory was Arkansas State's fifth in a row and raised the Tribe's season mark to 10-6. Southwest Missouri dropped to 5-11.

Belcher pulled down 16 rebounds in addition to his 24 points and Brooks hauled down 14 rebounds.

Arkansas State was on top 43-26 at intermission but Southwest Missouri cut the lead to 6 points with about 12 minutes left in the game. The Indians shot back into a 10-point lead two minutes later and were on top by 20 points with less than eight minutes remaining. Eric Thompson paced the visitors with 15 points.

The Indians face a key Southland Conference showdown with Abilene Christian College at Abilene Saturday night. Both teams are 2-0 in the SLC.

Officials for the tournament are Terry Martin, Bobby Smithson and Willie Norman. Wylie J. Staggs is host coach and James R. Staggs is Tournament Director. The winner and runner-up of the tourney will represent Area 13 Senior girls in the Arkansas State tournament February 22-27 at Arkansas College in Batesville.

Crampton to Defend Title in Hawaii

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — As the defending champion, Bruce Crampton said, he may have a little bit going for him in the Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament.

"For one thing," the Australian veteran said, "You know you can win. You've done it before."

"But there really isn't that much difference in a tournament where you're the defender," he said before the start of today's first round in the $200,000 event.

"Maybe a little more confidence. But when you've been playing so long, it really doesn't make that much difference."

Crampton is a sturdy 36-year-old who has been playing on the American tour since 1957, when he came over to compete in the Masters. He admits that it was the rich purses on the American tour that prompted him to leave Australia — and he's won his share of them.

Crampton, a serious-minded, articulate man, has scored nine top victories, the latest the 1970 Westchester Open; has won more than $100,000 each of the last three years, and ranks ninth on the list of all-time money winners with more than $575,000.

And he's one of the few foreigners ever to join the American PGA.

"I thought it was only fair," said Crampton, now a resident of Dallas. "This is where I make my living."

He has not taken out American citizenship. But the next generation may. His son, 3-year-old Jay, was born in the United States.

"He will have dual citizenship until he's 21," Crampton said. "Then he can decide for himself. The problem before then is where we'll educate him, in the U.S. or in Australia."

Crampton, along with Lee Trevino and $1 million winners Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper, ranked as a top contender for the $40,000 first prize. But he didn't minimize the odds.

"I feel a great sense of achievement every time I even make a check," he said. "On the American tour you're playing against the best in the world and you can have only one winner a week. That's pretty small odds."

Some other top contenders in this event, which will be telecast nationally by ABC-TV via satellite Saturday and Sunday, are PGA champ Dave Stockton, Larry Hinson, Frank Beard, Bob Lunn, Miller Barber, Bruce Devlin and big George Archer, winner of last week's Andy Williams-San Diego Open.

Eric Thompson paced the visitors with 15 points.

Stars Fell on Indiana in 3rd Period

The Stars fell on Indiana, in the third quarter, and took over sole possession of first place in the American Basketball Association's Western Division.

Leading only 52-47 at halftime Wednesday night, the Utah Stars outscored the Pacers 41-21 in the third quarter to put the game out of reach and break the tie for the top spot in the West.

Merv Jackson led Utah with 26 points. Roger Brown paced the Pacers with 20.

In other ABA games, Memphis downed Carolina 118-109, the New York Nets edged the Floridians 104-100 and Texas thumped Denver 127-119.

In the National Basketball Association, Seattle nipped Cleveland 98-95, Cincinnati clubbed Boston 134-115, Chicago drubbed Baltimore 124-102 and Milwaukee beat San Diego 100-101.

Carolina simply couldn't keep up with the Memphis Joneses. Wilbert scored 27 points, Steve 21 and Jimmy 20 for the Pros. George Lehmann paced Carolina with 28 and Joe Caldwell added 26.

The Nets got past the Floridians as Rick Barry scored 11 points in the fourth quarter including the Nets' last six. Barry finished with 30 points. Larry Jones led the Floridians with 24.

Donny Freeman scored 33 points, 23 in the second half to lead Texas over the Rockets. Denver piled up a 24-7 early lead before the Chaps rallied. Larry Cannon of Denver was the game high scorer with 35 points.

Weather Is Factor in Hawaiian Open

HONOLULU (AP) — The Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament, at $200,000 the second richest on the pro tour, got off to a rather uncertain start today.

The weather was in the humid, steaming 90s for the pro-amateur competition Wednesday, and there's a kona wind blowing, which is off the ocean and generally bad news.

The Waialae Country Club course is soaked and soggy from recent downpours. Any further rain could threaten the tournament.

And there was the pro-am. Gen. Jack Cavatt hit one shot dead left, waist high, off the first tee. It struck a young man square in the stomach. He wasn't hurt but declined to give his name. Said he's only private on R and R from Vietnam.

Billy Casper was introduced as "a former U.S. Open champion."

He's the Masters champ. Arnold Palmer was introduced as, among other things, "former PGA champion." It's the one major title that has eluded him.

And they discovered that the Hawaiian Open flag—a 3x5-foot emblem blying beneath the American and Hawaiian flags—was upside down.

"Maybe," said a tournament official, "we should leave it that way."

A flag, flown upside down, is an international distress signal.

Consoles Bad Serve With $10,000

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Rod Laver says he is having problems with his serve. But the Australian left-hander can console himself with another $10,000.

"I could have served a little better," the 33-year-old Laver said after drubbing England's Roger Taylor 6-3, 7-5, 6-2 Wednesday night to run his Tennis Champions Classic winnings to $80,000 with eight straight victories.

Laver's serve was the only part of his game that wasn't flawless. The rest was all there — cross-courts, passing shots, backhand smashes, and deadly lobs. But he had six double faults and consistently failed to get his first serve in.

He had too much for Taylor, who was unable to match his form at last year's Wimbledon, where he upset Laver in the quarter-finals.

The $210,000 tournament moves next to New York's Madison Square Garden, where Laver meets the Netherlands' Tom Okker Saturday afternoon. Taylor will face Australian Roy Emerson.

Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif. once known equally for the power of his game and his court tantrums, coolly disposed of Tony Roche of Australia 6-2, 7-5, 7-5 with an assortment of spins and placements.

The 'Needle' Will Have to Be Right

LOS ANGELES (AP) — At the University of Southern California Ron Riley is known as the "needle" and he'll have to be at his sharpest Saturday night.

Riley and the undefeated Trojans battle the UCLA Bruins at the Los Angeles Sports Arena in the biggest collegiate basketball game of the season to date.

Four straight times the national champions, the Uclans boast a front line of Sidney Wicks, Curtis Rowe and Steve Patterson from their defending title team.

Southern California's main strength has been in the back court. The slim Riley, 6-foot-8 and 195 pounds, is the man up front battling for the rebounds.

Forwards Chris Schrobilgen and Joe Mackey have between them 53 rebounds fewer than Riley who has 233 to his credit in the 16-0 season.

UCLA's front line has been tough. The Bruins have lost only to Notre Dame in 16 games to date. It will be up to Riley to take on the big trio in the game which will send either USC or UCLA to the fore in the Pacific-8 campaign.

Both clubs boast 4-0 records and it's the league champion which goes into the NCAA tournament.

The Trojans are slightly favored.

Los Angeles fans well remember that the Uclans in past years have come through in the big ones and that Wooden's record for the past 4½ years stands at 131-5.

Gabriel Has Undergone Operation

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Rams' quarterback Roman Gabriel is recovering today from an operation he didn't expect—on his throwing arm.

Gabriel and tight end Billy

HOPE (ARK.) STAR, Printed by Offset

Truax had surgery Wednesday to remove torn knee cartilage. Dr. Danny Levinthal also investigated the big quarterback's complaint of pain in his right elbow.

Levinthal removed some loose cartilage from the elbow, saying it probably has caused Gabriel arm trouble for two seasons in the National Football League.

All the operations were successful, Levinthal said.

Wilkins Gets the Best of Washington

Bobby Washington was a hero with 37 seconds to go. Then, the young Cleveland Cavalier hooked up with veteran Lennox Wilkins and things changed.

Washington converted a three-point play to put Cleveland ahead 95-94 but then fouled Wilkins twice, and the Seattle player-coach made four shots to give the SuperSonics a 98-95 National Basketball Association victory Wednesday night.

Wilkins' last two foul shots, his 29th and 30th points, came with seven seconds remaining. Dick Snyder added 28 points for Seattle while Bobby Smith and Walt Wesley scored 25 and 24, respectively for Cleveland.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Cincinnati trounced Boston 134-115, Chicago belted Baltimore 124-102 and Milwaukee tripped San Diego 108-101.

In the American Basketball Association, the New York Nets edged the Floridians 104-100, Utah took Indiana 120-111, Memphis whipped Carolina 118-109 and Texas beat Denver 127-119.

Flynn Robinson hit seven-of-10 field goals and scored all 17 points in the second quarter when Cincinnati scored 43 to begin its rout of Boston. Tom Van Arsdale scored 34 points and Norm Van Lier 32 for Cincinnati. Van Lier also recorded 11 assists and nine rebounds. John Havlicek led Boston with 28 points.

Bob Love registered nine of his 35 points and Chet Walker hit eight of his 23 in a third-period spurt that enabled Chicago to break away from Baltimore.

Aspirin Acts on Many Ills

But Treat It with Respect

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Have you ever taken aspirin? Over 27 million pounds of aspirin are used each year in the United States. That is enough to treat more than 17 billion headaches.

In addition to headaches, aspirin is used to treat muscle pains, decrease fever, treat arthritis and for a host of other problems. Since anyone can buy it across the counter, patients often don't realize that it is a potent medicine. Aside from allergic reactions, in large doses it can and does sometimes cause coma and death. It should not be regarded as a simple household remedy but should be treated with respect and kept away from children.

The important ingredient in aspirin is salicylate. In aspirin it is acetylsalicylic acid. Salicylate is also used as a salt called sodium salicylate. The sodium salt cannot be used in patients who do not tolerate salt, like patients with heart failure. Originally, salicylate was obtained from willow bark, which is where its name comes from. Willow bark was used by the ancients to lower fever. Sodium salicylate was used in the later 19th century in the treatment of rheumatic fever and it is still used today for that purpose. Aspirin as we know it appeared in 1899.

Aspirin will lower fever but will not affect the temperature of normal people. It accomplishes this by dilating the blood vessels in the skin and causing the body to lose heat.

Two aspirin tablets are about as effective in relieving pain as the usual small dose of morphine or codeine taken by mouth. Aspirin is particularly good in relieving muscle pains, generalized aches and headaches

Shakes Head About Race Restriction

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Glen Wood is a quiet, smiling Virginian so well versed in the art of building fast race cars that he seldom lets anything ruffle his feathers.

But the former driver was shaking his head woefully Wednesday as his latest creation, a 1971 Mercury, circled the Daytona International Speedway with the great A. J. Foyt at the wheel.

"In a way it seems a shame to put shackles on a good race car and a good driver like that," he said. "But in the long run, I think it will help the sport."

Wood, who maintains his garage in the quiet little mountain town of Stuart, Va., was commenting about National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing's new rule that requires all stock car racers to carry restrictor plates on carburetors this year, in effect knocking 10 to 15 miles per hour off their speeds.

Last year, Wood's Mercury, with Cale Yarborough driving, set the all-time qualifying record for the 2.5 mile Daytona tri-oval, a blistering 194.014 m.p.h. His 1971 car will be lucky if it gets past 180 m.p.h.

Foyt, who has replaced Yarborough for the Feb. 14 Daytona 500 and for a second big event at Ontario, Calif., Feb. 28, was among NASCAR drivers who opened practice at the speedway and will run in qualifying trials Saturday.

His top lap speed was 174.383 m.p.h., and Foyt, too, was shaking his head.

"That's the same size Ford engine I ran in a stock car last year," the 35-year-old Texan said. "I think it is a shame to put blenders on it like you would a horse."

Wood commented, "Oh, I think we'll get faster, maybe up to 180. And I think we'll have a better race at that speed because more cars will be able to run together."

Foyt will be in the car when 35 or more drivers take a shot at winning one of the two front row positions in qualifying runs. Most experts believe the pole winner will come in at about 180 m.p.h.

Aspirin will start having effects within 30 minutes and about half of it will last 24 hours. It does not cure colds but merely reduces fever and discomfort—which, after all, is a lot.

If a person needs to take lots of aspirin he can save money by buying aspirin in 1,000-tablet bottles. Some of the less advertised cheaper brands are just as good as those with well-advertised names. Your doctor can help you select the right medicine.

Please send your questions and comments to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Lamb cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

posted by 55-year-old Iggy Katona of Willis, Mich., who is a top driver for the Auto Racing Club of America. The ARCA drivers are prepping for a 300-mile race at the speedway Sunday.

Katona's unofficial speed was 179.215 m.p.h. in a Dodge, on which no carburetor restrictor plates are required. Andy Hampton, a 44-year-old ARCA driver from Louisville, Ky., was clocked at 177.486 and Ramo Stott of Keokuk, Iowa, 176.647.

NASCAR defending champion Bobby Isaac was the fastest among NASCAR pilots, clocking 176.612.

The ARCA drivers will begin qualifying Thursday for spots in the race's starting order.

North's three-heart bid is an example of expert technique. He intended to try for slam later on provided his partner could show he really had a heart suit. South confirmed hearts by going to four and North Blackwooded his way to the slam.

The slam is a very good one. When perennial McKenney Trophy winner Paul Soloway looked over dummy, he saw he would romp home barring some very bad breaks. His only problem was to find the safest line against these potential trumps.

He won the trump lead in dummy and led a club. West's ace collared his king and a second trump was won in his own hand. He noted that East discarded a diamond.

The Balanced Budget Concept Is Dumped

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It was thought in many circles two or three years ago that Richard Nixon was an acolyte of orthodoxy and that his administration would be a reflection of conventional thinking.

Instead, the President has disposed of some of the most time-honored Republican economic themes as easily and swiftly as if he were simply cleaning off his desk.

The balanced budget concept has been dumped. So has the notion that the executive branch shouldn't influence monetary policy. Likewise the attachment to high interest rates and the belief that government shouldn't interfere in the market place.

The President now has embraced rather than apologized for a budget deficit. He has openly suggested to the Federal Reserve what monetary policy should be. He is vigorously pursuing low interest rates and he has spoken out against some industrial price increases.

And you won't find one in 10 economists who holds to the belief that there ever will be a full return to older policies.

In working out his approach to economic goals, the President has wrenched from the Democrats a raft of ideas that once were believed too far to his left. And in doing so, he has denied the Democrats their most potent criticisms.

Remarkably, the swiftness and confidence with which he has disposed of old concepts and embraced the new apparently has shielded him from the criticism of more conservative Republicans.

If such policies had been offered as propositions, it seems likely that the arguments would outlast his administration and that they could promote long-term divisiveness as well.

What brought about the changes? Unquestionably, events during the past two years have produced great doubts in the President's mind about the effectiveness of conventional economic practices.

Fiscal and monetary policy, it was felt, could steer the vast, nearly trillion-dollar economy, and the administration placed its full confidence on spending restraints and a tighter money policy in seeking equilibrium.

The results were a bit disappointing. The efforts did slow economic expansion, which was felt to be a requirement for controlling inflation. However, inflation continued, although somewhat abated, and unemployment rose more than foreseen.

In the past, inflation and unemployment were thought to be tradeable. That is, a rising level of joblessness was thought not just to be a corollary of receding inflation but a cause of it.

Many economists no longer are certain this is so. A feeling exists that somehow an inflationary bias has been built into the economy.

Where did it come from? The most widely accepted answer is that it can be traced to the Employment Act of 1946, which commits the government, legally and morally, to a full utilization of its energies.

Bill Repeals Real Estate Transfer Tax

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Revenue and Taxation Committee of the Arkansas House recommended passage Wednesday of a bill that would repeal the state's real estate transfer tax.

The measure, sponsored by Reps. Gean McDonald of Sheridan and John Miller of Melbourne, would repeal a law enacted in 1969 by the legislature and which Miller said had produced about $2 million in tax revenues.

Miller said, however, the tax was uncontrollable and unfair. The 1969 law levies a tax of $3 per $1,000 value of property transferred. There are bills pending in the legislature that would reduce the tax.

24 Persons Killed in Plant Blast

BRUNSWICK, Ga. (AP) — A worker injured in an explosion at a munitions-making plant that killed 24 persons says she saw fire before the blast.

Lillie Mae Rainey, 18, one of the 34 hospitalized with injuries, said, "There was all this fire and a loud blast, and everything started falling—boulders, the roof and everything around us."

Her statement provided a clue for representatives of the Thiokol Chemical Corp., Army and FBI who probed the ruins of the Thiokol complex in the Georgia marshlands seeking the cause of the Wednesday blast.

Miss Rainey, speaking from her bed at a Jacksonville, Fla., hospital, said she was on a porch of the reinforced concrete building where magnesium flares were being made when she saw the fire start at a steel house trailer used as part of the assembly line.

The explosion turned the trailer into shrapnel, flattened all but one wall of the concrete structure and twisted metal panels of an adjoining warehouse into weird patterns.

Pieces of debris punctured an above-ground steam heat line so many times it resembled a sieve. Surrounding pine woods were set afire and the blaze burned fiercely more than an hour before being brought under control.

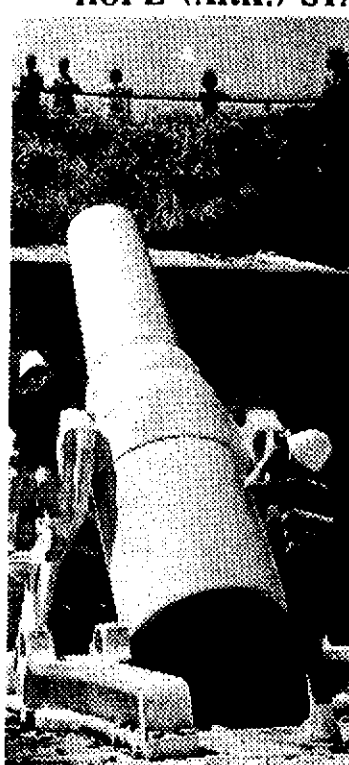

Miss Rainey, with shoulder and body injuries, was listed in fair condition. Seven others among the injured were critical.

J. B. Galloway, Thiokol division manager in charge of the plant 45 miles southwest of here, which employs more than 500 and manufactures various munitions for the U.S. government said:

"The chemicals in that building were classified as burning material, not detonating material. There were no high explosive involved in making the trip flares and illuminating devices in that area.

"But there definitely was a big explosion."

Within minutes, trucks, cars

SCENIC SHOT for photographers is this historic gun still in its original mounting at Ft. DeSoto, Fla.

and rescue vehicles began moving the injured toward hospitals in St. Marys, Brunswick and Jacksonville.

"As they came by the first aid building, I started jumping in and out of trucks and cars and, later, ambulances, giving the injured shots," said the plant nurse, who asked not to be identified by name.

"I emptied two bottles of Demerol—that's 100 doses—and I didn't give anyone more than one shot," she said. "That's the only way I could tell how many came by."

A makeshift morgue was set up in the lunchroom of the women employees' locker building. The tables were moved out in a drizzling rain, and 16 bodies in blood-soaked wrappings were laid side by side in the lunchroom.

Relatives filed by and identified most of them.

The Thiokol Chemical plant at Woodbine was built in 1964. It is made up of a series of complex units similar to the four-building unit virtually destroyed in the explosion.

Torn Buffington, finance and administration director said that in addition to military munitions the plant manufactures insecticide for commercial use.

$37 Million for Charity

NEW YORK (AP) — Martha Baird Rockefeller, stepmother of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, has left $37 million in bequests to charity.

Mrs. Rockefeller, who was 75, died Jan. 24.

The will filed in Manhattan Surrogate Court Wednesday left $10 million to Lincoln Center, New York cultural complex.

Other large bequests included $5 million each to Colonial Williamsburg, Va., the Metropolitan Opera Association, the Martha Baird Rockefeller Fund for Music and the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Left $1 million apiece were Brown University, the Riverside Church of New York, the Philharmonic Society of New York, the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston and Occidental College in Los Angeles.

Rolls-Royce Folds, British Take Over

By RODNEY PINDER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Rolls-Royce, the giant British aerospace and luxury automobile company, announced today it was going into receivership. The government said it will take over Rolls assets essential for national defense and international cooperation.

The company blamed soaring costs in the development of an engine for America's Lockheed Tristar jetliner.

Despite the announcement that it intended to continue Rolls' international ties, the government left in doubt the future of the Tristar project.

"The government has no liability in respect of the contract between Rolls-Royce and Lockheed," Aviation Supply Minister Frederick Corfield told Parliament.

Accountant E. Rupert Nicholson was named the receiver. "My objective will be to preserve as much as I can," he told newsmen.

Nicholson now takes over control of the company and decides its future. As a last resort, he could declare it bankrupt and liquidate its assets, but it was considered most unlikely that the government would allow this to happen.

The government was expected to make a statement in Parliament later today on the company's crisis.

Rolls is heavily involved in a number of important projects in Britain's defense program and is building the engines for the Concorde, the British-French supersonic airliner.

A statement by the company's board said the loss of resources committed to developing engines for the American Lockheed Tristar jetliner "are on such a scale that they are likely to exceed the net tangible assets of the company."

It added that under the circumstances it cannot go on with the Tristar engine development, thus incurring heavy termination costs.

Trading in the company's stock was halted on the London Stock Exchange today at the company's request.

Rolls said "whatever arrangements are to be made" there will be substantial layoffs among its 90,000-man force.

The company is the Western world's third largest manufacturer of aircraft engines, after America's Pratt and Whitney and General Electric.

Prime Minister Edward Heath's Cabinet held an emergency meeting Wednesday night to discuss the finances of the firm, which is a symbol of British engineering skill.

The company's crisis is the result of its agreement to develop and deliver 600 RB211 engines for the Lockheed Tristar at a fixed price. Costs soared and Rolls announced expected losses on the deal of $115.4 million.

Rolls Royce, in addition to building one of the world's best automobiles, supplies engines for 110 airlines and 32 air forces, nuclear submarine reactor plants, rocket engines, diesel engines for road, rail and water transport in 100 countries, and gasoline engines.

Aeroengines account for almost 80 per cent of its business. It employs more people and sells more airplane engines than the other European engine manufacturers combined.

Rolls Royce was founded in 1906 by Henry Royce and Charles Stewart Rolls. It became an international name with development of its Silver Ghost automobile, the pride of princes and millionaires throughout the world.

With the building of the engine which powered Alcock and Brown for the first nonstop flight over the Atlantic, Rolls Royce embarked on the aerospace trail.

Alternative to City Killer Law Offered

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — An annexation bill characterized as an alternative to the so-called "city killer" law received a favorable recommendation Wednesday from the City and County Affairs Committee of the Arkansas House.

The committee voted 11-3 to recommend passage of the Arkansas Municipal League bill after a 1½ hour public hearing attended by about 200 persons who jammed the old Supreme Court room at the Capitol.

Opponents of the measure said the bill would repeal the 1969 "city killer" legislation. Sponsors, however, said it would merely give city governing bodies an alternate method of annexing territory.

The "city killer" law gives residents in an area to be annexed a veto over annexation by requiring separate votes in the city and the area to be annexed before the annexation would become effective. The bill heard Wednesday would set up procedures by which a municipality could enact an ordinance to annex territory. The ordinance could be referred to a vote of the people. In the election, annexation would be city and the area to be annexed.

Witnesses who testified in support of the bill said the legislation was needed to provide for the orderly growth of cities. Opponents said, however, that residents of rural areas should be given a voice in whether they are to be brought into a city. The "city killer" bill gives them that voice, the opponents argued.

Scientists Hear Spent Booster Hit the Moon

By BILL STOCKTON
AP Science Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — While scientists on earth watched and listened, Apollo 14's spent booster crashed into the moon today, sending a shudder through the lunar crust detected by a seismometer erected during the Apollo 12 mission.

The signals transmitted to Mission Control by the Apollo 12 instrument were similar to seismic signals recorded when the spent booster stage from Apollo 13 crashed 10 months ago.

"It looks very, very similar to what we saw on Apollo 13," said Dr. D. W. Strangway, chief of the geophysical science branch at the Manned Spacecraft Center.

The similarity of the signals to previous man-made moonquakes is important, he said. "It's significant in that we are getting the same pattern for all the things that are happening on the moon whether they're meteorite impacts, natural events or man made," he said.

This indicates the moon's crust is probably uniform in its makeup over large areas.

The S4B booster, one of the stages which rocketed astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr., Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa away from the earth Sunday and followed them toward the moon, crashed at 2:40 a.m. EST about 115 miles south-southwest of the Apollo 12 landing site in the Ocean of Storms. Scientists estimated it dug a crater 30 feet deep and 180 feet wide with an impact equivalent to exploding 11 tons of TNT.

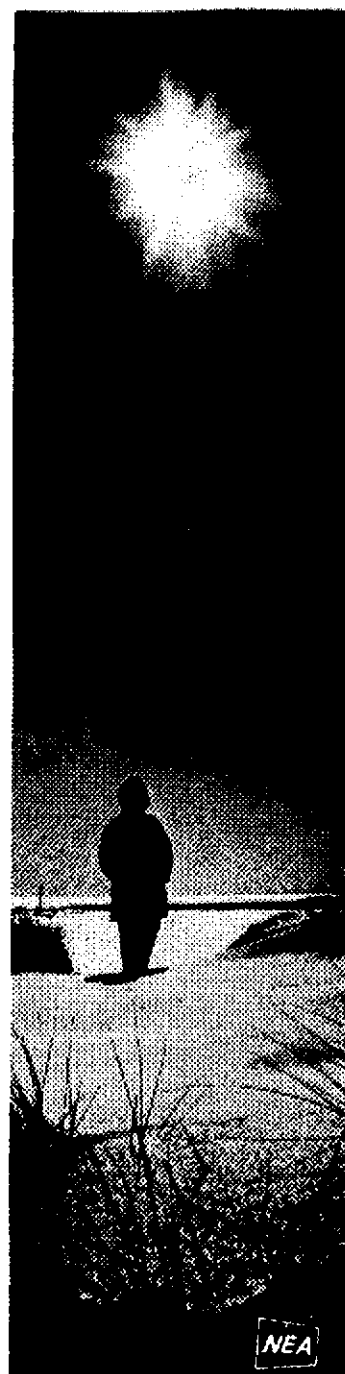

Thirty-two seconds later, the first seismic signals were recorded in Mission Control on paper charts on revolving drums.

For the first time, scientists also used a device that converted the signals into audible tones. As the amplitudes of the seismic waves crested and waned, the tone moaned and wailed, much like an off-tune flute.

The "warbler," as scientists dubbed it, has little scientific value and was installed as a curiosity, Strangway said.

One minute after the booster crashed, other instruments left in the Ocean of Storms by the Apollo 12 crew detected another effect connected with the crash.

Instruments that record the presence of charged particles in the moon's neighborhood detected a cloud of such particles. Scientists believe they result when matter thrown up by the crash interacts with the solar wind or magnetic and electric fields.

ire of some representatives. "It's not the content of the bill that's bad — it's the manner this bill has been handled," said Rep. Art A. Givens of North Little Rock.

Givens said he had attended a civic club meeting earlier in the day and that he had been asked why the legislature was permitting Bumpers' administration to "railroad bills past you."

"Any bill that's a good one and that's in the best interest of the people of Arkansas would stand the light of close scrutiny," Givens said.

The bill would create in the office of the attorney general a consumer protection division that would be headed by a lawyer who would represent the state, governmental subdivisions, business and consumers. His office would act as a clearing house for complaints and would conduct investigations and take action on them.

Atty. Gen. Ray H. Thornton Jr., a prime backer of the consumer protection bill, told the House that the proposal would not harass "the honest business community of Arkansas." He said it would help the state protect against "fast businesses" moving into Arkansas that would deceive consumers.

The attorney general said the bill would supplement federal laws. Thornton said he would ask for an appropriation of about $40,000 to fund the consumer protection office.

Rep. George E. Nowotny Jr., of Fort Smith spoke against the bill, not because he opposed it, he said, but because he wished to delay action in order for the House to consider an amendment which he wished to offer. Nowotny also said he was not satisfied with some answers Thornton had given to legislators' questions about the proposal.

Rep. G. W. Turner Jr. of Pine Bluff, opposing the bill, said the wrong man in the attorney general's office could "harass any businessman out of business" under provisions of the bill.

Rep. P. K. Holmes of Newport, a past president of the Arkansas Council of Retail Merchants, urged enactment of the bill, saying it "protects old people and those who are ignorant."

"At a certain age, people are susceptible to silver-tongued salesmen," Holmes said.

The House passed on a vote of 79-11 the bill to exempt retirement pay and disability benefits of former servicemen from the state income tax.

The tax has not been collected for 27 years, but a recent attorney general's opinion said retirement pay of members of the armed services was not exempt. The state Revenue Department had planned to begin imposing the tax.

Nowotny, speaking against the bill by Rep. Jesse Hayes of Pochontas, said the retirement

Government to Rest Case in Selb Trial

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The government was expected to rest its case today in the trial of James L. Townley of Hurst, Tex., a former quality assurance supervisor for General Dynamics Corp.

Townley is one of seven persons charged with conspiring to conceal defective parts made by Selb Manufacturing Co. of Walnut Ridge for the controversial F111 fighter-bomber.

Selb supplied General Dynamics, the prime contractor for the plane, with wing pivot support plates that held the movable wings on the plane and with longerons that provide the main support for the tail section.

The government contends that Selb used unauthorized weldings in defective parts so the parts could be machined to pass inspection.

Allen M. Ray, sales manager for Sewell Motor Co. of Kennett, Mo. told the U.S. District Court jury Wednesday that he sold a new car to Townley for $4,461 on July 20, 1968. He said that Townley traded in a car and that Harry C. Bass Jr., owner of the Selb plant, gave him a $2,150 note for the remainder. He said Bass came in four days later and paid off the note in cash.

pay of servicemen should be treated for tax purposes as the retirement benefits of other professions that are taxed.

However, Rep. Cecil Alexander of Heber Springs said the tax might cause a "mass exodus of retired servicemen from Arkansas and stop the influx of retired service personnel into the state."

In other action, the House approved 86-0 a bill prescribing the procedures for registering 18 year olds to vote in federal elections. The bill is a companion measure to a proposal signed into law by Bumpers to implement provisions of the federal law giving 18 year olds the right to vote in federal elections.

Also approved by the House, on a vote of 91-0, was a bill by Alford providing that no person related in the first degree of consanguinity to a candidate shall be eligible to serve as an election judge or clerk. The bill exempts relatives of the justices of the peace, political party committeemen and unopposed candidates.

The Senate defeated 7-19 the administration bill setting up the system for gathering information on crimes. Sen. Joe T. Ford of Little Rock, however, gave notice that he would seek another vote on the proposal.

In other action, the Senate: —Approved on a 1-0 vote and sent to the House a bill to enlarge the Parks, Recreation and Travel Commission from seven to 11 members.

—Approved 29-0 and sent to the House a bill to exempt unopposed candidates from laws requiring candidates for political office to file reports of campaign expenditures.

Under the crime information center proposal, law enforcement officials and some court officers would have been required to provide to the center certain data on request of a board the bill would have created to supervise the system.

An officer failing to supply requested information, on forms to be distributed by the staff of the center, would have been subject to a fine of $100 to $500.

Sen. Harold King of Sheridan, sponsor of the bill, said the measure had been endorsed by the state association of county judges, prosecutors, sheriffs and chiefs of police as well as the heads of the State Police and the Correction Department.

He said federal aid would have been available to help establish the system, although the state would have been required to provide matching money.

Sen. John F. "Mutt" Gibson of Dermott was the only senator who spoke against the bill and he called it a "Gestapo in a machine."

The bill did not define explicitly what kind of data the board could request, so it did not have to concern convictions or convictions, Gibson said.

"It could be any information the center deems that they need to know about you," he said.

Gibson also said that the "hue and cry" of the Bumpers administration had been to reduce the number of agencies and that the Senate should not change its attitude and create a new one.

Follower Says Manson Didn't Lead

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A bright-eyed admirer whom Charles Manson nicknamed "Squeaky," has unfolded for the Sharon Tate murder trial jury its first inside picture of Manson's hippie-style clan, its genesis and wanderings.

"Manson was never our leader," insisted red-haired Lynette Fromme, 22, an original and still loyal member of the "family," disputing state claims that Manson held dictatorial power over followers.

"He would follow us," she said. "All he had to do in the whole world was see what we wanted and needed. He really cared for us."

Miss Fromme, thin and freckle-faced, vividly described the Manson family travels in an old schoolbus, picking up runaway teen-agers along the way.

"We were riding on the wind," she said.

Miss Fromme, who camped outside the Hall of Justice during much of the seven-month-old trial, was brought to court from jail to be a defense witness. She was arrested in December and charged with conspiring to murder a former family member who, authorities said, was given an LSD-spiked hamburger to prevent her from testifying against Manson. The girl recovered and testified.

Miss Fromme's testimony at the trial's penalty phase was part of the defense effort to persuade jurors to decree life imprisonment instead of execution for Manson and three women followers convicted last week of murder-conspiracy in the seven 1969 killings.

Miss Fromme, daughter of an aeronautical engineer, said she grew up in a "typical middle-class home" near Los Angeles, quarreled with her family and was "kicked out" at 18. She said Manson found her near the beach in 1967.

She said he asked her to join him, and, "no one had ever treated me like that before, not pushed me around, so I just picked up all my things and went."

Another girl joined them in an old car and they headed for San Francisco's Haight Ashbury hippie district. Soon others wanted to join and they switched to an ancient schoolbus which someone had given to Manson. In Haight Ashbury, she said, they watched the hippie culture "grow and die, watched it get dirty."

They pulled out and traveled the coastline, picking up youngsters with no place to go. "We'd meet kids begging on the streets. All they wanted was to get away from one kind of life that was beating them around."

In Southern California they found defendant Patricia Krenwinkel, now 23, who told them she was fed up with the drudgery of work in an insurance agency.

"She was looking, like all kids are, looking for something that was real and the truth," Miss Fromme recalled. "She was looking for peace and someone to love her. She could see there was a way out of it, and we just left, that's all."

On the road again, they returned to Haight Ashbury and encountered defendant Susan Atkins, now 22, in a commune. The Manson group smoked marijuana with her and Miss Atkins asked to come along.

Miss Fromme didn't say how defendant Leslie Van Houten joined the group, but by the time the bus made its last journey to Southern California Leslie was a traveler. By then there were about 25, mostly women, who felt "for the first time we were all living."

They met the owner of a one-time movie location, the Spahn Ranch, and he let them move in. The women did chores to earn their keep.

The state says it was from there Manson sent his co-defendants out on murder missions in August 1969.

Under questioning by Paul Fitzgerald, the chief defense lawyer, Miss Fromme said all women in the group loved Manson who "sings as though it would make you want to sing. We loved love."

Manson, she said, taught them a new life style which included polygamous sex, a difficult adaptation for the women.

"We were used to having a man all to ourselves. There was competition, oh yeah, we had blankets going back and forth."

But they learned to share Manson and looked on him, she said, as "a father who knew that it was good to make love."

Making love with Manson, she felt "guiltless, like being a baby."

What was his attraction? "Charlie is man," she said, "and we were all looking for a man who would be at our feet with his life but wouldn't let us step on him. We love man, and that's woman's life, that's the key."

How long would she be true to Manson? "Forever."

Many Joined Army Just to Beat Draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army analysts estimate four of five young men who joined the service last year enlisted to avoid the draft and were not true volunteers.

This indicates how far the Army still must travel to come in sight of the all-volunteer force President Nixon hopes to achieve by mid-1973.

Manpower specialists feel the 1970 experience, the first full year under the random draft system, gave them a reliable idea of the extent men truly volunteered or were avoiding the draft in order to choose a branch of service and a specialty.

For purposes of the study, Army analysts calculated any young man who drew lottery number 240 or higher last year was certain of escaping the draft.

It was found that 64,000 men enlisted in the Army in 1970—about 21 per cent of the 296,000 men who entered that service. Another 73,000 volunteers were classed as draft-motivated and 159,000 men, were draftees.

In testifying Tuesday before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Pentagon manpower chief Roger Kelley seemed to give a somewhat more bullish estimate of true volunteers than the Army study showed.

Kelley indicated about half of the enlisted volunteers are true volunteers.

But he was omitting from his calculation the large bloc of draftees, and he was talking about all services, not just the Army.

Nixon, in working to reduce the armed forces by one million men below the Vietnam war peak of 3.5 million, places considerable importance on maintaining the strength of the reserves to back up the smaller regular military establishment.

Thursday, February 4, 1971

The Army study and Kelley's testimony agree generally that somewhere around 70 per cent of the new entrants into the National Guard and reserve are prodded by the spectre of the draft.

The administration has developed an elaborate program aimed at making military service, including guard and reserve enlistment, more attractive.

Bill Abolishes Pardons and Paroles Board

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A bill to abolish the state Board of Pardons and Paroles and to create a new board of three full-time members was introduced Wednesday in the Arkansas Senate by Sen. John F. Bearden Jr. of Leachville.

The new board would be independent of any other state agency.

Bearden said the bill was drafted by Oscar Fendler of Fayetteville, an attorney and former member of the parole board.

The bill would require that board members be lawyers, citizens of the state and have backgrounds or training in penology. A staff of three also would be created to assist the board in developing adequate information on which to base a decision on whether to parole a convict.

Sen. Jim Fowler of Little Rock introduced a bill to bring registered nurses, licensed practical nurses and licensed psychiatric technicians under a single board and to make several other minor changes in state nursing laws.

Sens. George Locke of Hamburg and Oscar Alagood of Little Rock introduced a bill to create a seven-member Arkansas Racing Commission and abolish the present five-member board.

Locke said the proposal had the support of the Arkansas Thoroughbred Breeders Association. The bill would provide that at least three members of the new commission would be thoroughbred horse breeders or owners.

The bill also would require a urinalysis test on the winner of every race at any thoroughbred race track in the state.

Sen. Guy H. "Mutt" Jones of Conway introduced a bill to authorize the governor to make any executive department reorganization of agencies affected by the administration's reorganization bill if such individual reorganizations are necessary to continue receipt of federal funds.

The bill is Jones' effort to make sure Gov. Dale Bumpers has reorganization authority originally granted to him in the reorganization bill. Some legislators feared an amendment Jones attached to that bill had negated the governor's authority to reorganize individual units within a department.

Sen. Morrell Gathright of Pine Bluff introduced a concurrent resolution to put the legislature on record as opposed to President Nixon's revenue-sharing plan.

Sen. Gene Rainwater of Fort Smith introduced a joint resolution for a constitutional amendment to permit the General Assembly to establish the salaries of all elective state and county officers.

Gathright also introduced a bill to amend the state Constitution to provide that voters may at their option indicate on their affidavit of registration any political party affiliation they have. The measure also would require party affiliation registration by any person before that person could hold any political office or serve as a poll official.

Jones and Rep. L. L. "Doc" Bryan of Russellville introduced in the legislature Wednesday bills to raise the gasoline tax to provide money for cities and counties.

Jones said the increase of one cent per gallon on gasoline and special motor fuels would yield $10 million annually in new revenue.

Constitutional and fiscal agencies, as required by the Constitution, would get $300,000 of that sum, but the remaining $9.7 million would go to the County Aid Fund or the Municipal Aid Fund.

Under Jones' bill, half of the money would go to each fund. Bryan's bill would distribute the money to each fund in proportion to the amount of urban and rural population in the state.

Rep. Charles A. Condit of Helena introduced a bill in the House to create an assigned risk pool for writing fire and extended coverage insurance for the state's public and private schools.

Insurers would be required to be members of an Arkansas School Property Insurance Underwriting Association. Members would write part of the school insurance.

Pollution Bonds Issue Offered

LITTLE ROCK (AP) —Four senators introduced Wednesday a bill to provide for the issuance of revenue bonds by the Arkansas Pollution Control Commission to provide grants to cities to help finance water pollution control projects.

The senators were Clarence Bell of Parkin, Q. Byrum Hurst of Hot Springs, W. K. Ingram of West Memphis and Morris Henry of Fayetteville.

The legislation is needed since federal law requires some system of state antipollution aid before cities are eligible for federal antipollution grants, the senators said.

Under the proposal, Senate Bill 229, the state's political subdivisions could apply for a state grant while applying for a federal grant under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act. The city or county making the application would have to comply with all federal requirements and be approved for the federal grant before they would be eligible for a state grant.

The state grant would amount to 25 per cent of the total estimated cost of the project proposed by the political subdivision.

Before a grant could be issued, the city or county would be required to establish fees at the local level to adequately finance the bonds, with the fees required by the bill to remain in effect until the grant had been repaid to the state.

A ceiling of 8 per cent is established in the bill on the interest the commission could pay on bonds it would issue.

The bill says that the bonds would be acceptable investments on the part of any city's Firemen's Relief and Pension Fund and Policemen's Pension and Relief Fund and any retirement system created by the legislature.
